VIVE LA FRANCE!

Sunday, March 17th should be a red letter day on the Mason County calendar. Visits of distinguished foreigners to Maysville or even to Kentucky are like those of angels, few and far between and when the visitor comes as does Monsieur le Capitaine Renaudeau for no reward other than our interest and attendance we should give both in full measure. In early times there was a strong affiliation between this part of our country and France as witness the names of various localities: Fayette county after General Lafayette, Bourbon after Franco's royal line, Versailles in memory of Louis XIV's beautiful palace and many other names which you can yourselves supply, attest the warm affection our ancestors, many of whom were of French blood, had for that glorious country. The Ohio river was named by the early settlers La Belle Riviere, and Michaux, the great French explorer traveling down it in a canoe in 1793 prophesied that its banks would be more thickly settled than any part of this country. Alas that time and circumstance refuted his forecast! That the French High Commission should so generously and courteously lend us one of their best speakers and most distinguished soldiers puts us as it were on the map and brings us in touch with that far flung battle line in France where so many of our dear ones are, or will be shortly.

Let us show our recognition and appreciation of this signal favor by filling the Opera House from pit to dome and by giving the Captain our most earnest attention and warmest applause.

Note well also Mesdames, that beautiful uniform of horizon blue is worth going miles to see!

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Of Chamber of Commerce Holds Meeting on Tuesday and Transacts Some Important Business.

A meeting of the Board of Directors was held in the office of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon and some important business was transacted.

The attention of the directors was called to the proposition to discontinue the landing license charge at the wharf which is before a committee of City Council. The secretary was instructed to communicate to this committee the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce to this appeal, as a stimulus to re-establish river transportation.

The referendum from the National Chamber of Commerce on the report of the special committee on water power development was referred to Chairman William H. Rees of the Legislation Division with instructions to cast the vote for the organization.

Chairman Rees cast the affirmative vote on the following recommendations: The committee recommended that Federal legislation encouraging the development of water powers should at once be enacted; that authority to grant permits to be vested in an administrative department or commission; that the permit period should be at least fifty years, any shorter period being at applicant's option; that tolls should attach only to use of public lands or benefits derived from headwater improvements; that permittees should be entitled to require the right to use public lands forming only a small and incidental part of the development; that capture may be exercised only upon payment of fair and just compensation; that if recapture is not exercised the investment of the permittee is adequately protected; that rates and service should be regulated by state commissioners where the service is intrastate, with federal regulation only where several states are directly concerned and do not agree or there is no state commission; that no preference should be granted as between applicant amounting to a subsidy from the government creating unequal competition.

Chairman Rees cast no vote on the recommendation that if any jurisdiction to regulate the issue of securities is exercised it should be solely against.

The secretary made a report on the local water situation. After some discussion on the subject the board introduced the secretary to call a meeting of the directors in the near future and invite Mayor Russell, City Attorney Daly, Mr. A. G. Sulser and the Public Utilities Division to attend.

The proposed war chest was referred to the directors and a motion was adopted endorsing it.

During his stay here Dr. Bote has done much to relieve certain insanitary conditions and has given especial attention to the milk question. He was well liked here and should the government decide to continue the health work in this county it is hoped that he will return here.

TIME TO THINK OF RUSSIA

Right now the important question for America and the Allies is not so much what they are going to do about the Japanese proposal of help in Eastern Siberia—it would be our guess that, though it be a Greek gift, it should be accepted—as what they are going to do about the Russian revolution.

It is a question that is most unsatisfactorily answered by abuse of Trotsky and Lenin. It is a question that can only be answered as it should be by those who have patience, not impatience, who bring sympathy not disgust to the solution. A certain perspective would not hurt either, a certain historical perspective. There is no revolution of which we have knowledge that worked itself out in a twelve month; none, that, with a foreign invader to settle with, procured a lasting settlement while the enemy was on its soil. As it happens, the Russian adventure is further complicated by the fact that the enemy has a double motive for crushing it out everlasting, land hunger and a haunting fear that the revolutionary contagion may gain such a footing in its own land as to threaten the very existence of that military oligarchy by which it lives and has its being.

The great French revolution, starting with the fall of the Basile in 1789, did not reach its crowning deed of emancipation until four years later, and thereafter struggled through various spasms of experimentation as well as of terror for quite a while. That it should later have accepted an empire was but a stage in its progress, a stage in which it would be a grave mistake to imagine that all was reaction, all was destruction of the fruits of emancipation. What happened in this land is well known, but, that it took time, seems to be forgotten. England's progress in democracy has not always been painless nor, for the matter of that, sane. She has moved forward from precedent to precedent and from custom to custom, keeping forms that were outworn and habits that should have been obsolete, but keeping an eye steadily fixed on a goal that king and parliament have agreed to know as democratic.

Why ask more of Russia? Ah, well, to be sure there is a reason, a good reason we try to persuade ourselves is not wholly selfish. We want Russia's aid in this war to liberate democracy. We do not want her—and this most of all—we do not want her lending strength to the Germany whom we must humble. We fail utterly—and have failed right along—to be grateful to her for the blow she struck when she dethroned a Czardom made in the image of Germany; when she unmasked secret diplomacy; when, beginning to feel her way out, she served notice on all unemancipated peoples—and those of the German empire most of all—that the torch of Liberty had been lighted anew.

Did America encourage her with a full encouragement? Did the Allies proceed right away to help her face the crisis other than with good advice? Did they realize that German propaganda was getting very busy and that the most lavish expenditure for peace would be a trifle compared to the cost of one week of war? We seem to remember that the famous formula, "No annexations and no indemnities and self-determination of peoples," evoked no noisy echo in the Allied councils and was frittered away by Washington. But Germany accepted it right away. Self-determination of Courland, Livonia, Lithuania, the Ukraine, and that district around Kars that stretches from the Black Sea to the Caspian.

Self-determination joins all these to Germany. Possibly, at the same time, it joins Finland and the Aland islands to Sweden. What else it may be intended to do is a question for Berlin, not for Moscow. Does that mean that the last word has been spoken and that the revolution has failed? No! It means that we have failed to give it time. We have been thinking of ourselves, not of Russia.

Well, it is not too late to think of Russia.—Louisville Herald.

A WARNING REPEATED

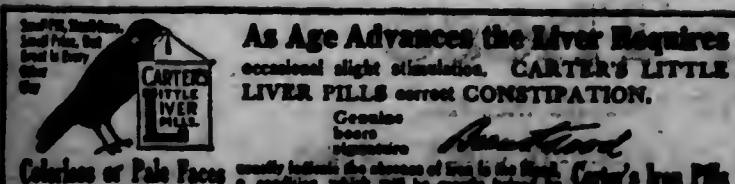

Judge Edgar M. Cullen contributes to the New York Times an article in which he warns Southern Democrats that insistence on saddling their undemocratic prohibition upon amendment will bring reprisals. "With any enforcement of national prohibition," he declares, "will go the enforcement of all the provisions of the Federal Constitution. It will not be tolerated that when New York is forced to obey an Eighteenth amendment Mississippi may ignore or evade the Fifteenth amendment. The Southern prohibitionists will get neither sympathy nor support in that matter from the Northern prohibitionists. The great majority of Northern prohibitionists are as radical on the negro question as they are on the liquor question."

The Judge says that "Southern nullifiers" need expect no support in their dead lettering of the Fifteenth amendment from the great majority of Northern prohibitionists any more than they can expect support from the women for whose enfranchisement by constitutional amendment some of their leaders at Washington paved the way.

The New York Herald approves this article of Judge Cullen's as "sound and illuminating", and other Eastern papers are not slow to give the proposition their assent.

The Courier-Journal long ago warned the Southern Congressmen, who are responsible for attempting to dictate nation-wide prohibition, that they would bring about the very situation which Judge Cullen threatens. They cannot hope to force prohibition and woman suffrage on unwilling Eastern States and expect any assistance in the future in escaping the constitutional amendment which would force in the South either "negro domination" or radically reduced representation in Congress and the Electoral College.—Courier-Journal.

Yes, ice is going to cost more next summer. You see, there was too much of it this winter, and it was too thick. That'll do as well as any other reason.

W. H. M'S MELANGE

Editor Public Ledger:

The recent election in the four Congressional districts of Greater New York City, has seemingly transported some of the exitable element of the Democratic party to the mountain-top of rejoicing. Were they only encouraged by the saner and more conservative element of the party, their hallelujah would make the Weikin ring. We fail to see where the material come from to manufacture all this enthusiasm, however, certain party leaders of the unlettered, see in this recent election a vision of coming victory that will give them control of both the House and Senate this fall.

One would suppose their enthusiasm would be cooled, when they were assured by an unwavering faith, that victory would again perch on their banner this fall. However such is not the case, the vision grows brighter, and as it grows brighter it expands, until it leaps with mighty stride, days, months, and years, and in the good year of 1920 they sweep the country, and plant their victorious banner amid the plaudits of the world upon the emplot of our country. What is there in this recent New York election that indicates an unbroken march of success? What are they basing their opinions on that assures them success not only this fall but also in 1920? Let us carefully investigate this recent election and see whether or not it warrants the claims of these over enthusiastic gentlemen. We must first consider that three of these congressional districts in which this victory was so gallantly won, are democratic strong holds, and indeed it would have been phenomenal had the majority been anything else but democratic. The fourth congressional district is considered close, and could be carried by either party with thorough organization. This being true, what ground is there for such extravagant claims? Can we justify these claims, that from the simple fact that democratic majorities that it insures the success of the party for years to come?

The Democratic party may hold the reigns of government for years, but to base an opinion, that it will do so, on such flimsy evidence, is the merest political bunk, and is not concurred in by the more sane and conservative element of the party. There is a strong intimation emanating from this hallelujah element of the recent election saved the day for the Democratic party, and their vote was not only an endorsement of Mr. Wilson's administration, but also a vote of gratitude for what he did for them in their fight for equal suffrage. We have no doubt but what the women of New York are doing all they can to assist the President in winning the war, just as the patriotic women of other states are doing, but to insinuate that Mr. Wilson or the Democratic party is responsible for equal suffrage in the Empire State, can only be looked upon as a big leak in the Democratic political gas bag. Equal suffrage in New York is not indecisive to either the Democrat or Republican parties, it was purely a socialist victory. In 1915 the state of New York defeated equal suffrage by a majority of 150,000, and in 1917 public opinion swings one hundred thousand the other way.

Was either of the old line parties responsible for this sudden and remarkable change? In 1917 Morris Hillquit, Socialist candidate for Mayor of the City of New York, made the most wonderful race of any candidate who ever ran for office in the Empire State. The Socialist party in 1917 gained 450 per cent and Mr. Hillquit received for mayor 143,000 votes, and as equal suffrage is one of the most cherished planks in the Socialist platform it is safe to say that in the City of New York alone there were 143,000 votes cast for equal suffrage, besides the large Socialist vote cast in other cities and towns of the state. The Cincinnati Post tells with much enthusiasm how wonderfully elated the administration leaders are over this most signal victory, and points with pride to the fact that 90 per cent of the registered woman voted; and leaves one to infer that the 90 per cent voted the Democrat ticket. We also glean this information from the Post, that only about 30 per cent of the registered males voted. In summing up all the information obtainable regarding this election we can see nothing in all this loud boasting but the vaporizing of an imaginary mind, or

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Marion Holcomb, of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter, oil or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headache. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. the bluff of a noisy politician. However there are a few points regarding this recent election that might be interesting if some one could tell us why. Why should it be taken for granted that because a Democratic district elected their man to congress that it would safe a Democrat victory this fall, and the election of a Democrat President in 1920? Why should it be accepted as an assured fact, that because the women of New York are supposed to have voted the Democrat ticket, that they will do so all over the country in 1920 where ever equal suffrage prevails? Why should 30 per cent of the registered male vote (this being all that voted) be accepted as the most illuminating enthusiasm? Does not this small percentage of the registered male vote show a decided indifference to political issues at this time? It might be a wise thing for the party, if the administration would place a muzzle on some of these loquacious gentlemen.

HOW TO TELL WHEN VEGETABLES ARE READY FOR USE ON TABLE

Such vegetables as leaf lettuce, kale, spinach, parsley, chard, turnip, mustard, and any other used as a green or salad may be gathered as soon as large enough to pay for the gathering. It is an excellent plan to make a practice of thinning the crops and using the plants removed as greens or for other purposes. Chard must be used while young as it soon passes its best stage. Kale should be used while relatively young as when young it is of much better quality than when allowed to become large. It is a far better plan to make frequent successive plantings of the foliage crops so as to have a supply of tender, succulent greens or salad material continually available.

Globe artichokes are ready for use as soon as the bur is formed and must be gathered before the blossoms appear. The bur is the bud of the flower and is used in the same way as turips or kohlrabi.

Jerusalem artichokes are used in the same way as potatoes. They are ready for use in the autumn and may remain in the ground until needed.

Asparagus is ready for use as soon as the young shoots are three or four inches long. If allowed to grow too long the shoots will become tough and woody.

Beans snap are ready for use as soon as the bean is about half formed. In the stringless varieties the pods may be allowed to remain on the plant a little longer than the other sorts, but in every case they should be gathered while young and tender. Lima beans should be gathered as soon as the pods are well filled out, but before the pods begin to turn yellow. They should be gathered while the beans themselves still have a fresh, green appearance. After the beans become white they are past their prime.

Watermelons—Ripeness is determined by sound, and my the general appearance. A ripe melon when struck with the hand gives a dull sound, which is readily recognized after a few trials.

Okra should be gathered while the pods are very young and tender and while the seeds are still soft.

Onions may be pulled and used as bunch onions when the bulbs are from a quarter to a half inch in diameter. If for boiled onions the bulbs may be any size.

Parsnips are not used until late in the autumn when the ground is frozen. Freezing improves their flavor; in fact, it is not considered advisable to use them as a summer vegetable. Size is of small importance, but those from 1½ to 2 inches in diameter are considered best.

Pear are ready for picking as soon as the pods are well filled and while the pears are still green, yet before either the pears become hard or the pods whitish or yellowish. Pears should not be gathered when too young, and if too old will be of poor quality.

Peppers may be gathered at any time until they begin to turn red. For some purposes they are allowed to ripen, but usually are picked green.

Early potatoes may be used at any time during their growth. An old-time rule is to begin digging them when they have reached the size of a hen's egg. It is advisable to begin using them when they have reached this size, digging the supply from day to day as needed, allowing the bulk of the crop to grow until needed or until they mature. Late potatoes should be allowed to grow until the vines die or are killed by frost.

Sweet potatoes are ready for use as soon as the heads are well formed and begin to crowd each other.

Cabbage is ready for use as soon as the heads are well formed and well blanched in the interior.

Chinese cabbage is ready for use as soon as well blanched.

Radishes may be used as soon as large enough. A common practice is to begin thinning them as soon as large enough. They should all be used while young and tender.

Carrots may be used as soon as they reach a size to justify pulling them. Many gardeners follow the practice of thinning the carrots and using those removed as vegetables or in soups. They may be grown as an all-season crop or as a late crop following something else. Size is not important, but very large ones are inclined to be tough and pithy.

Cauliflower is ready for use as soon as the bleached heads are well filled out with the masses of globular would form seed. It is important that it be cut while the heads become old.

Celery is ready for use as soon as it reaches a good size and is blanched. It may be used green for stews, soups, etc.

Collards may be used as soon as the rosette of leaves which forms the head is developed and blanched.

Sweet corn should not be pulled until the ears are well filled out. This is about the time the silk begins to die. When the milk becomes doughy the corn is old for table use.

Cucumbers are ready for use when very large enough, and before they begin to turn yellow.

Eggplants may be used at any time after the fruit is large enough to justify picking. It should not be allowed to remain on the bushes too long or decay will set in.

Turnips for greens may be used as soon as the foliage is large enough to justify picking; if for the roots, when the roots are from 1½ to 2 inches in diameter. When planted as a late summer crop for roots for storage, they should be allowed to grow until hard freezing occurs. Those from 2 to 3 inches in diameter are best. Larger ones may be used for stock feed.

50,000 DRAFTED MEN TO BE CALLED ON MARCH 29

Washington, March 12—A movement of 50,000 drafted men to begin on March 29 and continue for five days, was ordered today by Provost Marshal General Crowder. The order calls troops from every State in the Union, with the exception of Iowa and Minnesota.

It included men remaining from the first draft and those liable to call in the second.

Just how many men of the second draft are affected by the order was not stated at General Crowder's office.

It is understood that the movement will virtually complete the first draft and that it is part of the announced plan to call registrants in small groups as fast as they can be accommodated.

Shortly thereafter they would be transferred into summer khaki. Am-

C. E. MARTIN, ProprietorBOY BADLY BURNED

At Ripley, Ohio, Early Tuesday Morning When Fire Damages Home of His Parents.

The Ripley (Ohio) Bee says: About 4 o'clock yesterday morning the residence of William Bailey on Second street near the Red oak bridge was discovered on fire. Not feeling well, Mrs. Bailey had risen early and lighted a fire in the kitchen stove. Soon afterward the fire was discovered, starting from flying sparks or a defective flue. Considerable damage was done to the building before the fire company extinguished the flames. A strong wind was blowing, but the tin roof kept down the sparks. The fire company did excellent work.

Upon discovering the fire Mrs. Bailey ran upstairs to awaken her sleeping son, Lovejoy Massie. He was still half asleep when he got down stairs. He became possessed with the idea that his mother was yet upstairs and rushed back through the flames and smoke to rescue her, and was badly burned about the head and arms. Not finding her, he started back and fell down the stairway. Reaching the street he started for the office of Dr. George P. Tyler to have his burns attended to. At the doctor's residence he fainted at the entrance and fell through the glass in the front door. Dr. Tyler revived him and dressed his burns and he is getting along as well as can be expected.

The loss on the house and contents is partially covered by insurance.

The family had just begun to pack up preparatory to moving to Cincinnati where Mr. Bailey is employed.

STATE MILITIA

Will More Than Likely Take Place of Home Guard Organization Planned For This City.

There has been quite an amount of interest taken in the movement to form a home guard organization for Maysville. It seems as though the state militia or home guard will take the place of the organization planned for this city.

Bills appropriating $60,000 for building and equipment for the house of reform for girls, $15,000 annually and a lump sum of $20,000 for the creation and maintenance of the state militia during the war and increasing the per capita of the State hospital to $190 a month were passed by the Senate Monday.

Before passing the Harlan measure, providing for the creation of the state militia and appropriation money for this purpose, the Senate went into the committee at the whole, with President pro tem Combs presiding, to hear Adjutant General James Tandy Ellis discuss the needs of such an organization during the period of war.

In a few words General Ellis set out the need for a state militia reflecting the situation existing last August in western Kentucky. At that time it became necessary for Kentucky to ask for Federal troops to do duty during the miners' strike. All the troops from this state had been ordered to Hattiesburg, with the exception of a signal corps, which was sent to western Kentucky to handle the situation, which General Ellis said they did with credit until the master became so grave that it was necessary to call on the federal government for assistance.

The state militia or home guard will be composed of men from 18 to 45 years of age. The sum appropriated combined with the militia fund, General Ellis said, would furnish equipment for the 5,500 men who compose the state militia and also allow for one week's rifle practice during the year.

BIG DRIVE

To Secure Books For Boys In Camp To Start Next Monday—Campaign To Be Under Auspices of Public Library.

The urgent cry for good books to read, from U. S. soldiers in France and from soldiers-in-the-making in the training camps in America, will be answered by a seven days' intensive campaign in Maysville, beginning next Monday under the auspices of the Maysville Public Library.

No magazines will be sought, but books of practically every description will be collected and immediately shipped to the soldiers in the trenches and in the training camps.

The campaign will be conducted at the same time in every state in the country, and in most cases funds for the work will also be asked. On account of the many demands that have been made for money for other purposes however and the ready responses local people have already shown in sending really good books for the soldiers, the campaign here will be confined to the latter.

The general direction of the campaign will be in the hands of Miss Mary E. Richardson, librarian, whose untiring efforts have already been responsible for hundred of good books being sent to the soldiers from Maysville.

The headquarters will be in the Library. Renazizing that there are many who have books and are willing to give them, but find it difficult to bring or send them to headquarters, arrangements will also be made to have the books collected in such cases.

A number of merchants have already agreed to allow their delivery wagons, on regular trips, to bring in books to the Library. War books are chiefly desired by the men in uniform; books which tell of philosophy of the war, of American aim and reason for entering the war, and of the points to be gained. Good fiction is in strong demand but the problem novel and deep discussions on things not of present moment go untouched. The boys like poetry and history, especially that of America, and of the other countries which are now participating in the war.

The least we can do for our Mason county boys is to furnish them with some good books. Be sure and send your used books to the Library at once.

Easley Ennis of Lexington street, is out again after being confined several days with the German measles.
